CZECHOSLOVAK GEODETIC AND CARTOGRAPHIC PERSONALITIES (C)

Introduction

The Czechoslovak mapping system was directed by the Central Administration of Geodesy and Cartography in PRAGUE ¹. (Ustřední správa geodesie a kartografie, PRAHA--USGK), which had subordinate units in Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia. 50X1-HUM

The Administration of Geodesy and Cartography of Slovakia (Správa geodesie a kartografie na slovensku--SGK) in BRATISLAVA directed all geodetic and cartographic activities in Slovakia. Subordinate to this administration, were the Geodetic Institute (Geodetický Ústav--GU) in BRATISLAVA, the Cartographic and Reproduction Institute (Kartografický a reprodukčný ústav--KRU) in MODRA-HARMONIA (N48-20, E17-18)(UTM XP-7156), and a territorial institute of geodesy and cartography (Oblasťný ústav geodezie a kartografie--OUGK) ² in BRATISLAVA, ŽILINA, and PREŠOV.

The Territorial Institute of Geodesy and Cartography in BRATISLAVA was further subdivided into divisions numbered I, II, III, and IV (Prvá, druhá, tretia, and Štvrtá prevádzka). Divisions I and III were mainly interested in topographic surveying; Division II was the reproduction division; Division IV was the cadastral surveying division; 50X1-HUM

Division IV had about 30 subordinate district survey centers; Each of these district survey centers was responsible for the cadastral surveying within its district boundaries, but did not do topographic surveying. 50X1-HUM

COMMENTS:

2. OUGK is usually referred to as the Regional Institute of Geodesy and Cartography; however, since each OUGK includes two regions in Czechoslovakia, an OUGK is referred to as the Territorial Institute of Geodesy and Cartography in this report.
